

INDUSTRY EXPERIENCE

I have been an Officer with the Orange County Sheriff's Department for over 28 years. In all these years, I have seen many law enforcement personnel use shackles and other control harnesses that were too hard to apply on hostile and combative suspects. These items also caused injuries to the suspects and officers. In addition, those harnesses did not work and were not cost effective for police departments.

TACTICAL CUFF RESTRAINT "TCR"

Currently, law enforcement personnel are often called upon to control individuals who display extremely violent or bizarre behavior which is often due to the ingestion of drugs, alcohol, or possible mental illness. However, these individuals must be controlled in a manner that is safe to both themselves and the officers. The Tactical Cuff Restraint device is a viable option to deploy in controlling suspects during transporting.

ABOUT THE TCR

The TCR 919, Tactical Cuff Restraint, is a durable nylon restraining belt. Serving as a tough and convenient tool which effectively keeps a cuffed suspect from slipping their cuffs inside of your police car while being transported.

It is reinforced heavy duty nylon material resists pulling, tearing and abrasions, always guaranteed to provide a secure hold. The grab resistant buckle features two hidden release tabs, preventing the suspect from undoing it. Yet still allowing quick and easy one-handed fastening. The metal D-ring on the top of the buckle attaches securely to the metal cage in the back seat of your vehicle. The belt can be used on chain or hinged hand cuffs.

Material is black 2-inch nylon webbing with grab resistant buckle and hook and loop Velcro on the inside of the belt (29" x 2"). Metal D-ring attaches to metal cage divider on top of the back seat.
